

The partnership was interpreted by the real couple, composed of Layla and Chris. “Now married, we cherish every chance to relive the magic of our wedding day through bridal shoots, celebrating our connection and capturing timeless moments together as husband and wife,” express Layla and Chris.

116 Pall Mall was the setting for the editorial shoot, perfectly aligning with the brief of City Elegance. Located in the heart of London and home to the Institute of Directors, this Grade I-listed Georgian building offered a refined and versatile backdrop, steeped in history and architectural beauty. The Nash and Waterloo rooms, along with the terrace and garden, provided a timeless mix of grandeur and sophistication, ideal for capturing the essence of a modern city wedding. The shoot was delivered in partnership with Searcys, their exclusive hospitality provider, with additional spaces used throughout the day to host hair, makeup and styling teams.

The KL Luxe team was behind the scenes, curating the natural glow of both the bride and groom. Laura was on hand for the day to touch up hair and makeup for an effortless look throughout the moments of the day.

The team were also blessed to have M(e) & O, a freelance wedding and event planner assistant, on hand to ensure the coordination ran smoothly and La Fête could focus on bringing this extraordinary shoot to life.
